I am trying to update a table I have created in cassandra by making a change to an input file that I made in liquibase. I tried doing this: cqlsh -u test -p xxxx update mytable set column1='foo' where column2='bar'; I got this error: No row found for SQL [UPDATE mytable SET column1='foo' WHERE column2='bar']; -> ["No row found for SQL [UPDATE mytable SET column1='foo' WHERE column2='bar'];"] I went to edit the liquibase.properties file and added some data to the cassandra.keyspace.table property:

cassandra.keyspace.table=mytable Now when I do this it doesn't tell me there is no row found but it says there was an error trying to get the next object row. If I do a select from mytable it does show me that there is an object there. I just don't know how to update it. Am I right to be doing this? Is there a place where I am supposed to go and update the schema? Do I need to do this after I have completed my liquibase config? A: Liquibase does not really support schemas. There is a ticket to do that, but it does not seem to be taken too seriously yet. So, you just do not have a schema that is fine. You have a table, and a cassandra table does not have a schema.

The fix is to do two things : Either create the table with 3e33713323
