On this day, the citizens of the Republic of Slovenia are allowed to serve strong coffee - that's one of the main characteristics of the event: the drunk and the sober fall into each other's arms. "Povidnik" symbolizes the identity of the Slovenes as a united people through the coffee. This 'together against the common enemy' attitude is typical and the thought of ending up in the hands of the police is almost impossible, says the organizer of the event - Veronika Goleč. The annual event is in fact an alternative festival to the "Mokožarja", the annual festival of the Slovenian wine-makers and the "Mekčej", the main Slovenian folk music festival. All three of the festivals are held in late August and early September. Goleč has been organizing the event since 1999 and it has remained a unique and an exclusive event in Slovenia. The organizers call it "alternative festival", but the participants from other cities are not allowed to take part in it. "The only feature of this event is the citizens who drink strong coffee and dance the last part of the night in downtown
