(Isolation of a new calf enterovirus and development of a diagnostic kit for its detection). A virus was isolated from an ill calf which showed clinical signs of diarrhea. Electron microscopic examination revealed a viral particle of approximately 30 nm in diameter. The infective new virus is named Aichi's 2/11. The nucleotide sequence of 2.5K and the amino acid sequence of VP1 of the Aichi's 2/11 strain were determined. Antigenic comparison between the Aichi's 2/11 and some typical enteroviruses suggested that the antigenic relationship between
